Dogfood News

When dogs show signs of diarrhea and soft stools... it's easy to blame the food. Which makes perfect sense. Right?

One of the most overlooked (and common) sources of diarrhea and other digestive problems in dogs... Can be linked to an infection caused by dangerous parasites... Like Giardia. An infection picked up from a dog's own contaminated water bowl. Or... From shared water bowls in dog parks, polluted puddles or other public places. Sadly... Pet parents keep making the same disastrous mistakes when they water their dogs. Mistakes that are totally avoidable. And they don't even know it. So... Dogfood News wrote an article about what they believe is the most neglected nutrient in a dog's diet... Water.

Water - Fixing the Most Neglected Nutrient in Your Dog's Diet

In the article, you'll learn... How contaminated water gets into your dog's own bowl. Which germs found in your pet's water bowl are most likely to cause diarrhea and soft stools... and where do they come from? What's the overall safest type of water bowl you can buy for your dog? What's the one type of bowl you should avoid because it's likely to leak cancer-causing chemicals into your dog's drinking water? What's the simplest way to significantly reduce the "dose" of disease-causing germs swallowed by your dog?
